Open Counselling

Every Thursday from 5 to 7 pm

In 'Open Counselling' the Psychoanalytic Library offers space and time.

Anyone is welcome: to pose the kind of questions no one wants to ask, to say that which until now none could or would hear – or perhaps just to give voice to curiosity.

In the tradition of the Berlin Polyclinic, 'Open Counselling' aims to revive the social life of psychoanalysis, to bring it into the city and to its public in new ways.

We warmly welcome you if, for example,

- you want to know more about psychoanalysis
- you wish to speak an agonizing thought
- you suffer from the effects of migration, refuge or displacement
- you are obsessed by certain ideas
- you feel at unease in you surrounds
- you fight with voices
- you feel painful or insurmountable loneliness
- you have difficulty getting along with others
- you are overwhelmed by an outrageous or unconscionable thought
- you behave in ways that are inexplicable or alien to you
- you are looking for orientation...

Counselling is currently being offered in German, English, French, Spanish, Portuguese, Luxemburgish and Danish. 'Open Counselling' requires no commitment regarding the duration of your participation. All conversations are confidential in accordance with standards of professional discretion. The space and facilities are kept available for your use by any and all voluntary contributions.
